OCTOBER TERM, 1975

No. 75-1362

EDMUND J. OLSEN,
Petitioner,

vs.

THE PEOPLE OF THE TERRITORY OF GUAM, Respondent.

On Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit

REPLY BRIEF

DENIAL OF THE WRIT WOULD ONLY PROLONG GUAM'S JUDICIAL CHAOS

Respondent concedes that "at the present time no court on Guam is hearing appeals from the Superior Court of Guam because . . . the Supreme Court of Guam does not wish to hear any cases until its existence is finally determined," Opposing Brief 3, and that the "issue must be decided as soon as possible to permit Guam to have a court to which cases from the Superior Court may be appealed," Opposing Brief 10, but then argues that "such a resolution will come just as quickly by a denial of the Writ of Certiorari as by full review of the issue by this Court." Opposing Brief 10.

Of course this is not so.

"A simple order denying a petition for a writ of certiorari is not designed to reflect the Court's views either as to the merits of the case or as to its jurisdiction to hear the matter. The Court has frequently reiterated that 'the denial of a writ of certiorari imports no expression of opinion upon the merits of the case, as the bar has been told many times.'" R. STERN & E. GRESSMAN, SUPREME COURT PRACTICE § 5.7 at 213-14 (1969) (footnote omitted).

If the writ is denied petitioner will have no choice but to pursue his appeal in the court of appeals and, if unsuccessful, petition this Court once more.

Dated, Agana, Guam,
April 8, 1976.

Respectfully submitted,
HOWARD TRAPP,
Attorney for Petitioner.
